The Goal

Communication is a human ability of fundamental nature; it is the main source of social and cultural life.
The potential of communication technology cannot be brought to its full realization, unless the human factors of usage, need, and benefit are given proper attention!

Computer-Supported Communication Spaces

Context dependent content search and content exchange among characters of people belonging to a given community

context

context

context

Communication Infrastructure
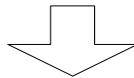

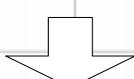

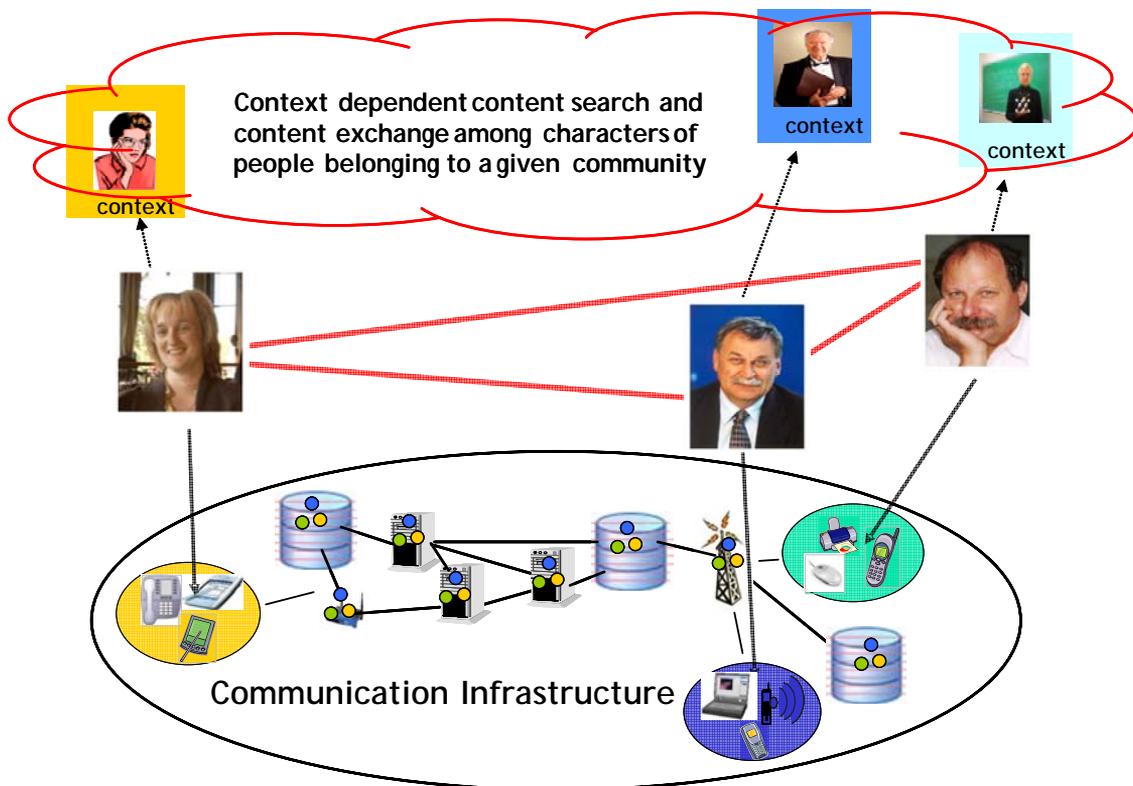

Build concepts, methods, devices and solutions for ergonomic, dependable computer supported communication spaces enabling human-human interactions according to the contextual situation and personal intent of the users.